What's Palin doing?

Many agree Alaska governor's resignation a risk

Associated Press

One of Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin's potential presidential rivals said Sunday that her abrupt resignation won't help her dodge scrutiny. President George W. Bush's chief political adviser said her strategy is, at best, unclear.

Former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee said Palin's announcement that she would not seek a second term—and leave office before finishing her first—simply doesn't make sense in a conventional political setting. Karl Rove, a longtime Bush counselor, said Palin has engaged in a “risky strategy.”

Then again, the pair said, Palin has never been a conventional candidate and her stunning announcement on Friday is what they have come to expect from the Republicans' 2008 vice presidential candidate.

“She marches to the beat of her own drum, and it's going to be very interesting to see how she pulls this off,” Rove said.

During a sometimes rambling statement Friday, she cited ongoing ethics complaints and the financial toll they were taking on the state and her personal finances. She also blamed the media for sensational attention and attacks on her family, although she didn't offer details.

Political observers struggled to make sense of the decision and its effect on a potential 2012 campaign for the White House. Even her rival during the last election, Vice President Joe Biden, seemed confused by the move.

“It maybe had a lot to do with what the state of their life was, and the state of their family, etcetera,” Biden said. “So I'm not going to second-guess her.”

Last year Sen. John McCain (R-Ariz.) plucked Palin from near-obscurity to be his running mate. The folksy governor remains a potent figure in GOP politics, although her resignation could make a potential 2012 campaign even more dicey. If she chooses to run, she'll enter a race with questions about her strategy as well as her experience.

Disney monorail crash kills 1

Associated Press

ORLANDO Two monorail trains crashed Sunday morning in Walt Disney World's Magic Kingdom, killing one train's operator, emergency officials said.

The transit system, which shuttles thousands of visitors around the sprawling resort each day, was shut down while authorities investigated the holiday weekend wreck.

The monorail operator died at the scene of the crash, which happened around 2 a.m., said Bo Jones, deputy chief for Reedy Creek Fire Department. The other train operator was not injured, but was taken to a hospital because he was emotionally shaken. Five park guests were treated at the scene.

Disney Vice President of Communications Michael Griffin identified the driver as 21-year-old Austin Wuennenberg. Griffin would not discuss how long Wuennenberg had been with Disney or the circumstances surrounding the crash.

“They are extremely rare,” Griffin said of accidents at the park. “The safety of our guests and cast are a top priority above all else.”

It is unclear what caused the crash, Jones said. Orange County Sheriff's officials are investigating the cause.

Jones said the crash happened at the park's ticket and transportation center. Ethan Meus, who was visiting the theme park from Dubuque, Iowa, said he and his family took the monorail to dinner at a resort hotel Saturday night. Meus, 17, watched the Magic Kingdom fireworks from the monorail on the way back to his hotel, he said, and didn't notice any problems with the train.

“It's pretty shocking to hear that a driver was killed in that accident,” Meus said.

The family was planning to take the train again Sunday to visit Disney's Epcot Center, but now planned to take a bus, Meus added.

Bizarro Twitter

When Sarah Palin announced Friday that she wouldn't seek re-election in 2010 and then surprised everyone by saying she'd leave office on July 26, fans and critics tried to make sense of it all.

And while Palin has an official Twitter feed and Facebook page, she didn't really explain what most everyone agrees is a risky decision.

Well, RedEye doesn't have any special insight, but we do have quite the imagination.

So we conjured up the Palin Twitter feed we'd like to see. And wouldn't you know it, the name we wanted, @AKGovSarahPalin, was already taken by her, so we called ours @you-betcha. SCOTT KLEINBERG (@REDEYETCHICAGO)

I saw it on Twitter—it has to be true

Raise your hand if you believe everything you read online.

Thought so. That's not good. As more people turn to Twitter for breaking news, it's important to remember that not all tweets are created equal.

When Ed McMahon died, followed by Farrah Fawcett, Michael Jackson and Billy Mays, the overarching topic was disbelief at all the celebrity deaths in a short period of time.

That started a disturbing trend where other celebrities "died."

First Jeff Goldblum supposedly fell off a cliff while filming in New Zealand. Actor Kevin Spacey tweeted that he had proof Goldblum was alive, but Stephen Colbert, who read the report "on the Twitter," refused to believe it—even as Goldblum showed up on his show in the middle of his on-air obituary.

Confusing? You bet.

It wasn't until actress Natalie Portman "died" that we could identify a pattern and trace the rumors to a source. Portman supposedly died on the same cliffs as Goldblum.

After New Zealand authorities confirmed that neither had been in an accident there, mashable.com identified a Web site that allows anyone to enter the name of an actor and create a false story.

Soon, Harrison Ford had gone to the temple of doom and then Rick Astley finally let us down.

Web sites have been spreading rumors for years. But Twitter, with its many portals from other sites, has become increasingly hackable and people are finding ways to expose its weaknesses. Accounts belonging to Britney Spears, Ellen DeGeneres and Diddy were hacked last week-end, and tweets about their "deaths" spread like wildfire.

So what do you do? Short of swearing off Twitter, which you know would last about 5 minutes, how do you avoid being duped? Here are three suggestions that apply to anything, not just celebrity deaths:

» Be informed before you inform: It's normal to want to spread the word, but first make sure you aren't spreading a rumor. Research.

» Consider the source: If a tweeter you follow and trust is doing the tweeting, there's a good chance he or she did the leg work for you. If the only person tweeting it is someone you don't recognize, be very skeptical.

» History 101: Who or what is the rumor about? Patrick Swayze and Steve Jobs have "died" many times on Twitter. Be careful. One false rumor is all it takes to lose all your tweet cred.

Do you fact-check before you post? Tweet me, poke me—just tell me. But make sure double-check your work.

SEVEN SINFUL SNACKS

FORGET ABOUT FRUIT—THESE ARE OFFICE STAPLES YOU KNOW AND LOVE ... AND SO DOES YOUR SPARE TIRE

Here are seven office snacks that contribute to your calorie count ranked in no particular order of evil. Local dietitian Jennifer Ventrelle offered eye-opening insights into what kind of exercise it would take—in a 30-minute interval—for the average U.S. man and woman older than 20 to burn off each popular office treat, based on the most recent body measurements compiled by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention National Center for Health Statistics.

Get a magnet and post this go-to snack guide on your office fridge. Try to stick to it next time you breeze by the break room.

REDEYE

No need to pore over the pages of the popular blog of the same name to find out: "This is why you're fat."

The answer may be no farther away than your company's break room, especially if said company offers complimentary junk food, pop or candy. The threat of a never-ending supply of empty calories is a growing concern for local workers who talked to RedEye.

Just ask Julia Lissner, a Loop attorney who said she gets a willpower workout every day.

That's because the 27-year-old is exposed to a constantly replenishing stash of snacks supplied by the company that leases space to Chapman Spingola LLP, the law firm where she works.

"It's in the break room, in the kitchens and available for clients," she said of treats and "tons of pop," available for free-ninety nine.

"I found myself sitting there eating the snacks all day," said Lissner, 27. "I would do things like have a Snickers bar for lunch, and then justify it by saying, 'Well, Snickers are healthy ... they have peanuts in them.'"

Local dietitian Jennifer Ventrelle said such gratis workplace treats can sabotage healthy eating efforts.

"It's definitely not done with bad intentions," said Ventrelle, coordinator of Rush University Medical Center's nutrition and wellness program. "Companies are making food available for people who may not have time to go out and get something for themselves. It can be a morale booster, but it also makes people more likely to reach for some of that stuff even if it isn't healthy."

Jill Geiger knows that firsthand.

The communications director at the Environmental Law & Policy Center said that even though the Chicago office offers mostly healthy treats, there was a co-worker who added Twizzlers to the mix.

"She was a favorite around here for that,"

BRAN MUFFIN

Break room breakdown:

This treat may sound safe, but Jennifer Ventrelle said you might as well eat a doughnut, even though the muffin isn't as high in fat. "In my opinion, it's a huge surge of carb that does nothing," Ventrelle said. "All carbs turn to sugar. A little is used for energy and the rest turns to fat."

Calorie count: 130 calories (1 muffin)

Burn notice: Ladies, get ready to play 18 holes of golf sans cart. Fellas, you're in for approximately a half-hour of weight training to make sure this bran doesn't bulk you up in a bad way.

DOUGHNUT

Break room breakdown:

This is bran muffin's big, bad older brother. If you're dying for the doughnut, Ventrelle recommends just eating half. Why, you ask? Answer to follow ...

Calorie count: 300 (1 doughnut)

Burn notice: Ladies: approximately 30 minutes of aerobic dancing and more cart-less golfing to delete this doughnut. Gents: Running at a pace of 5 mph might save that six-pack.

SNICKERS BAR

Break room breakdown:

Not sure how to translate their silly slogans, like "chewmote" and "fillionaire," but it's clear that this candy bar can be a sinful snack. Attorney/fruit-lover Julia Lissner was right to cut this candy out of her lunch plans. Why? Drumroll, please ...

Calorie count: 280 (1 regular-sized bar)

Burn notice: Ladies: inline skating, followed up by an equally long bowling session stomps out this Snickers. For the fellas: in-line skating alone will suffice.

Guess who?

The Fridge Scene Investigation lab's constantly cracking cold cases on our blog (redeyechicago.com/munchtime). Here are four office fridges we've analyzed recently. Can you guess the office based on the contents of the fridge? Take a whack at it, then go to redeyechicago.com/munchtime to find the answers.

Fridge No. 1

What we said: Booze appears to be a greater priority than food. I'm thinking this is a green-room fridge at a music venue.

Michael Hines

Fridge No. 2

What we said: I like how Rick's mom labels his waffles for him. Perhaps this is a teacher's lounge.

Brian Moore

BAGEL*Break room breakdown:

Bagels seem like your buddy during a morning meeting, but are they really worth this calorie count?

Calorie count: 350 (1 bagel)

Burn notice: Ladies, get ready for a racket, literally, with tennis followed by an equal amount of gardening. Gents: You'll almost kill these calories by bicycling at a pace of 10 mph, followed by gardening.

COLA*Break room breakdown:

Ventrelle said offices that stock free soda may be undermining their own productivity. "Like the other foods and drinks that contain a lot of sugar, it gives you an energy that results in a bad crash," Ventrelle said. "What might worsen things is that because it is liquid, you can take in a lot of it throughout the day and even lose track of how many you've had."

Calorie count: 150 (12-ounce can)

Burn notice: Gardening for the gals, and horseback riding for the dudes.

CHIPS*Break room breakdown:

A popular chip slogan challenges you to eat just one. Better hope you can stick to fewer than 20.

Calorie count: about 150

Burn notice: Repeat: Gardening for the gals, and horseback riding for the dudes.

PIZZA*Break room breakdown:

Delivery, or DiGiorno? No idea—but here's the skinny on the calorie price for a slice.

Calorie count: 280

Burn notice: For the ladies: tennis followed by an equal amount of bowling. For the fellas, inline skating will push away that pizza.

Tweet treats

How fat is your office? We asked some of @redeychicago's Twitter followers to keep track of workplace treats for a week. Jennifer Lantro, 26, a food ingredient specialist at Higgins & White in Brookfield, shared with us her office's eating habits. To see what other Chicago offices are snacking on, visit redeychicago.com/officefood.

fresh homemade blueberry pie. holy mother of all mothers. pie is ok for breakfast right?

Geiger said with a smile. "But I can't say I'm not glad we are no longer getting that stuff brought in."

Instead, Geiger's company orders organic fruit from Irv & Shelly's Fresh Picks as a treat for its approximately 30 employees. The assorted fruit from the Niles-based organic delivery service consists of local fare whenever possible, Geiger said.

Lissner, too, is in a remission of sorts after a year of snacking dangerously.

At a recent retreat, she asked her firm to consider ordering fruit. It complied. Now, every week, employees are welcome to organic groceries from Rogers Park-based Newleaf Natural Grocery, Inc. The grocery's owner said he is seeing an uptick in the amount of businesses interested in this service.

"I think people are becoming more aware of the benefits of having healthy food options in the office instead of the typical junk food-type stuff," Newleaf owner Stephen Parkes said.

A little cheating is OK, according to Rush University Medical Center's Ventrelle, who advocates an 80/20 rule: Workers should eat healthy offerings about 80 percent of the time and treat themselves the other 20 percent of the time.

"It's no fun being the freak in the corner that everyone is wondering about: 'Why don't they ever eat any treats?'" Ventrelle said.

As for those menacing munchies you need to be keeping on your 20-percent list, RedEye rounded up seven naughty snacks, some of which are likely playing in a break room near you. We'll even tell you what the average man or woman would have to do to burn off these high-calorie culprits. KKYLES@TRIBUNE.COM

Fridge No. 3

What we said: Notice the bag of celery—it's unopened. Ditto for the package of salad greens. ## Victim critical after shooting in Burnside

A man in his 30s was shot in the head Sunday afternoon in Burnside, police said. The man was shot in the 600 block of East 87th Street, said Chicago Police Officer John Mirabelli. The man was taken to Advocate Christ Medical Center in "very critical" condition, Mirabelli said.

Man charged in beating death

A man was charged Sunday with beating his elderly landlord to death and then burning the man's body in an attempt to hide the killing, police said. Martin "Angel" Vega, 28, of the 5000 block of South Talman Avenue, was charged with one count of first-degree murder, said News Affairs Officer JoAnn Taylor. On Thursday, William Hallin, 67, went to collect the rent he was owed, but an argument ensued and Vega became enraged, police said.

South Side holdups subject of alert

Chicago police issued a community alert Sunday seeking two men who may be behind a series of robberies at small businesses on the South Side. Police believe the men may have hit at least two hair salons and one bakery in Chicago Lawn and Deering. The holdups occurred between June 29 and July 3, police said. Anyone with information is asked to call police at 312-747-8382.

Deadly shooting in Bronzeville

Chicago police were looking for several people responsible for fatally shooting a man Sunday in Bronzeville. Police responded to the shooting about 10:15 a.m. on the 4700 block of South Forrestville Avenue, said News Affairs Officer JoAnn Taylor. Witnesses told police the man was shot after several people exited a gray Chevrolet Monte Carlo and began firing.

For many riders, a 30-day CTA transit pass is now a better value

Chicago Tribune

Vickie Johnson is paying more money to ride the CTA than she did a year ago. But there's an up side: She also is using mass transit more often and driving her car less.

After doing the math, Johnson concluded she would be spending even more money on commuting if she continued using a CTA Chicago Card to pay individual fares instead of switching to a 30-day pass, which allows unlimited trips on buses and trains.

"The monthly pass didn't make sense for me before," said Johnson, an accountant who rides the Red Line between Rogers Park and downtown.

"Now I'm buying a pass every month and using the CTA to run errands on weekends instead of driving, to make sure I'm getting my money's worth."

She is not alone. Many riders have taken a second look at how they pay their way aboard buses and trains since a fare hike this year and the elimination of popular bonuses when value was added to CTA "smart cards" and the end of discounts given when the cards were used on the rail system.

As a result, Chicago Transit Authority ridership using the 30-day pass has increased about 15 percent overall in the first five months of the year compared with the same period in 2008, according to the CTA.

Ridership on the 30-day pass option using the Chicago Card Plus fare card has shot up even more, increasing by about 22 percent.

Meanwhile, pay-per-use riding on the Chicago Card and the Chicago Card Plus has declined a total of 7.5 percent, while on the Chicago Card alone, ridership fell about 24 percent.

Regular CTA riders who haven't made changes might want to stop and count the money they are wasting.

The unlimited-ride 30-day pass, once considered too expensive by people who rely on transit solely to commute to work and back home five days a week, is now the cheaper route to go for many CTA customers—even though the price of a 30-day pass increased this year to $86 from $75 in 2008.

It's that case because the CTA scrapped the 10 percent value-added bonus whenever money was put on Chicago Cards or Chicago Card Plus cards.

In addition, people using the smart cards previously received a 25-cent discount on train fares. That discount ended Jan. 1.

"With the elimination of those discounts, we anticipated that many of the Chicago Card customers might revisit their fare preferences," said CTA spokeswoman Sheila Gregory.

So at $86, the 30-day pass is less expensive than the $90 that a five-day-a-week commuter would fork over for 40 individual $2.25 fares to work and home—and that's with no transfers or other additional uses.

CTA customers who make "two-seat trips" using a combination of buses and/or trains, and who are riding the CTA instead of driving for discretionary trips at night and on weekends, are saving even more money by buying 30-day passes.

Fireworks lit the night sky above New York with a kaleidoscope of colors shooting 1,000 feet into the air on an Independence Day that began with the Statue of Liberty's crown opening to the public for the first time since Sept. 11, 2001.

It was the nation's biggest fireworks display, with more than 22 tons of pyrotechnics exploding Saturday over a mile-and-a-half of the Hudson River, a new vantage point for New York's festivities. Millions of spectators watched from both sides of the river.

In Washington, the daylong celebrations started with a parade along Constitution Avenue and ended with fireworks over the Washington Monument as a band played a medley of patriotic music.

On Saturday evening, Bostonians filled the banks of the Charles River for a free Boston Pops concert featuring Neil Diamond.

The nationwide festivities, though, were not without some calamity.

In North Carolina, authorities said a truckload of fireworks exploded on Ocracoke Island off the coast, killing two workers and critically injuring three. And in central Florida, officials said one person was killed in a lightning strike at a 4th

Fallen stars

What happened to the Cubs and Sox players who were All-Stars last season?

RedEye

All was well in the baseball world last season as the Cubs and White Sox were ruling their divisions and sending a total of 10 players to the All-Star game. This year, just two Chicago players will don the All-Star gear July 14 in St. Louis. Why? This might explain it. TRIBUNE CONTRIBUTED. SOURCE: MLB.COM

CUBS

Ryan Dempster	Carlos Marmol	Kosuke Fukudome	Carlos Zambrano	Aramis Ramirez
LAST YEAR Dempster looked like the Dempster of old with a 9-3 record and a 3.24 ERA.	His performance had him in the running for the closer position this year.	The newcomer was hitting .287 with 7 HRs.	He was fifth in the NL with a 2.94 ERA. He also had a 9-3 record.	He was eighth in the NL with 60 RBIs.
THIS YEAR His ERA is 4.09, and he has a 5-5 record. Good thing he didn't predict a World Series win this year.	His performance has baffled fans at times. In 38 1/3 innings pitched, he has issued 39 walks. That's not good.	Cooling off after another fast start. Six homers, .259 average. That's bad in any league.	He's 4-3 with a 3.50 ERA, but he's battled his infamous temper several times, already earning himself a suspension.	An injury has limited him to 18 games, but he had 4 homers, 16 RBIs and was hitting .364 when he went down.

CUBS				WHITE SOX

Geovany Soto	Alfonso Soriano	Kerry Wood	Milton Bradley	Joe Crede	Carlos Quentin
LAST YEAR First rookie catcher to start for NL.	He had 15 home runs at this point in the season.	Voted into his first All-Star game since 2003, Wood had 22 saves.	(with Texas) Had 22 homers and 77 RBIs with a .321 average.	First-time All-Star had 15 homers.	He was having an MVP-type year with 19 homers, 61 RBIs.
THIS YEAR Hitting .232—and explaining why he tested positive for weed at the World Baseball Classic.	Has 14 homers, but he just got dropped to sixth in the batting order thanks to his .223 average.	Playing for Cleveland, but he blew two saves in his return to Wrigley last month.	Batting .244 with 6 homers and 19 RBIs. He, too, has been suspended for arguing.	Playing with those piranhas, the Minnesota Twins, he has 12 homers and 36 RBIs.	A plantar fasciitis injury has limited him to 38 games. He's hit 8 HRs and knocked in 20 RBIs.

Buehrle

Lilly

Buehrle, Lilly land All-Star spots

Chicago Tribune

Second City? How about Second Thought City? If not for Major League Baseball's traditional rule requiring every team to be represented, there may not have been a single Chicago player in the July 14 All-Star Game at St. Louis' Busch Stadium. The Cubs and White Sox are among nine teams that had only one player named to the team—left-handers Ted Lilly of the Cubs and Mark Buehrle of the White Sox.

CUBS 8, MILWAUKEE 2

Derrek Lee and Jake Fox hit home runs to back the pitching of Ted Lilly, the Cubs' only All-Star, in a 8-2 victory Sunday over the Milwaukee Brewers.

It gave the Cubs three wins in the four-game series with the Brewers at Wrigley Field, with the NL Central-leading Cardinals coming in Friday for a four-gamer.

And on Monday, cleanup hitter Aramis Ramirez returns to the lineup after missing two months with a dislocated left shoulder.

KANSAS CITY 6, WHITE SOX 3

The momentum that the White Sox built during the first five games of this seven-game road trip fizzled Sunday.

Left-hander Clayton Richard was tagged for four runs on eight hits in only 3 2/3 innings of a 6-3 loss to the Royals.

The Sox's loss, their second straight after winning a season-high seven in a row, dropped them into third place in the AL Central. The Sox (42-40) maintained their 2 1/2-game deficit, as Minnesota moved into second place following a 6-2 victory over first-place Detroit.

Nah-stars

If the Five on Five panel were reserved for all-stars today, you wouldn't have anything to read. Bonus answers at tr.im/fiveonfive.

TOPIC	JIMMY GREENFIELD jgreenfield@tribune.com	LEO EBERSOLE lebersole@tribune.com	SCOTT KLEINBERG skleinberg@tribune.com	ELLIOTT SERRANO redeye.chicgo.com/geektome	EVIL SUPERCOMPUTER redeyesports@tribune.com
1 Ted Lilly and Mark Buehrle are Chicago's baseball All-Stars. Thoughts?	No Milton Bradley? What a travesty.	Once again Chicago proves to the nation we're just a bunch of left-wingers.	It's time to revamp the All-Star voting process.	It's like when your schoolmates picked you for kickball because the gym coach made them: pitiful.	Cubs and Sox fans don't know how to rig the voting like I do.
2 Rank on your scale how happy you'll be if the Bulls sign Jannero Pargo again.	On a scale of 1 to 10, I give it a 10 for not giving a damn.	Between "Happy for rain" and "Happy there are no metal scraps in the candy I'm eating."	With 1 being completely uninterested and 5 being somewhat uninterested, I'm at minus 3.	You would need an electron microscope to see how little I care.	I've been happier getting a virus.
3 Lance Armstrong starts Monday 10th in the Tour de France. Can he win it?	Just as long as he doesn't Twitter while he rides.	Yes. Better question: Could he win it with Kate Hudson in a sidecar?	Yep. That bracelet he wears? Secret rocket launcher. You heard it here first.	Nope, which is what he gets for deleting all those Sheryl Crow songs from his Tour de France playlist.	According to my calculations, no way in hell.
4 What's the most impressive thing you've done on a bike?	Had sex with a bisexual woman who was on a unicycle.	Skinny my knee. And, somehow, my ass.	Stayed upright for 15 minutes.	Took my Schwinn on some sweet jumps in the alley behind my old house on 47th Street once.	I successfully oversaw the test-firing of a North Korean rocket.
5 Roger Federer: Greatest tennis player ever?	Sure. Pass the dip.	Second-greatest android ever, behind the Fembots from "Austin Powers."	Personally, I think Anna Kournikova has a much nicer rac—er, racket, but if you say so.	That's like saying bran flakes are the greatest cereal ever. They're good but oh so bland.	Perhaps, but he wouldn't be able to touch me in Mario Tennis! HAHAAHAHA!

Woods wins his own tourney

BETHESDA, Md. Tiger Woods made it a hat trick of victories in tournaments hosted by PGA Tour stars, this one the most meaningful of all because it was his own.

Woods lived up to his hopes of being a “greedy host” Sunday, leaving Anthony Kim in his wake and then making a 20-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole to overtake hard-charging Hunter Mahan for a one-shot victory in his AT&T National.

Woods closed with a 3-under 67 at Congressional for his third victory of the year, the others coming at the Arnold Palmer Invitational at Bay Hill and Jack Nicklaus’ Memorial Tournament.

The challenge came from a rising star, just not the Californian anyone expected.

Mahan made six birdies on the back nine for a 62, tying the course record that Kim set Thursday. The final birdie on the 18th gave Mahan a share of the lead, and he had to wait more than an hour to see if Woods could top him.

Woods twice scrambled for par to stay tied for the lead, then looked as though he squandered a good birdie chance on the par-5 16th when his chip from the rough came out heavy and stopped 20 feet from the hole. Backing off once, he rolled in it, then walked stoically to the hole, nodding his head.

He closed with routine pars to finish at 13-under 267. The 68th victory of his PGA Tour career moved him to the top of the money list and the FedEx Cup standings for the first time this year.

Go Mondays for: $6 specialty cocktails, such as the Melon Trip, made with watermelon-infused Le Tourment Vert absinthe, sugar, mint and soda (usually $9)

The Ledge

1745 W. North Ave. 773-252-6053

The drinks aren't fancy and the patio's hardly a scene, but candlelit tables fenced in by tall wood walls offer a rare seclusion from the buzz of Wicker Park.

Go Tuesdays for: $3 well drinks, $4 Stella Artois drafts and $5 Patron shots

The CrossRoads

1120 W. Madison St. 312-243-1113

Choose your seat wisely at this West Loop tavern: a table along traffic-heavy Madison Street or the quieter May Street side, spruced up with a mural.

Go Saturdays for: $4 Leinenkugel Summer Shandy bottles, $4 Corona and Corona Lights, and $5 Steigl-Radlers, German shandy-style beer with lemon soda

Crocodile
FILE FOR METROMIX

Crocodile

1540 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-252-0880

This Wicker Park pizza bar has some decent deals during the week ($4 Bombay Sapphire cocktails on Tuesdays), but it's the cheapo brunch cocktails that we're wild about. Though they're not technically deals since they're the same price every weekend, they're bucks cheaper than the 'hood standard.

Go Saturdays or Sundays for: $3 mimosas and bellinis, $4 bloody marys

6 Degrees

1935 N. Damen Ave. 773-904-8812

If you're craving some air but don't want to scorch in the sun, grab a high-top table at the front of this Bucktown newcomer near the open French doors.

Go Wednesdays for: $3.50 Sam Adams Boston Lager drafts, plus Sam Adams Light and Summer Ale bottles

5 FAVORITES

Kirkwood

2934 N. Sheffield Ave.

773-770-0700

Come for the flashback-inducing fishbowls, stay to appreciate the two additional flat screens that bring the TV quota on this patio to five. Go Sundays for: $6 frozen Stoli blueberry lemonades or mango margaritas and $6 Connecticuts, a house creation of Twisted Tea with a shot of citrus vodka.

Zella

1983 N. Clybourn Ave.

773-549-2910

A fresh paint job and a new crop of hanging planters have given this picturesque Lincoln Park patio a seasonal face-lift. Go Mondays for: $4 splits of Korbel sparkling chardonnay, plus half off everything on the menu.

Happy Village

1059 N. Wolcott Ave.

773-486-1512

We could go on and on about the reasons this Ukie Village beer garden makes us happy. But with Chicago's unpredictable weather, we're most grateful for the tent covering much of the space.

Kirkwood
FILE FOR METROMIX

Go Tuesdays for: $4 John Dalys (iced tea, lemonade and vodka)

Cork & Kerry

10614 S. Western Ave.

773-445-2675

The sound of beer bottles clanking in ice-filled buckets is the siren song of this Beverly standby's beer garden, decked out for the season with flowers and umbrella-topped tables.

Go Wednesdays for: $3.50 Smithwick's, Harp and Guinness drafts, $4.50 daiquiris and lemonades.

Old Oak Tap

2109 W. Chicago Ave.

773-772-0406

Though this is technically the first full summer that Old Oak's beer garden is open, it earned a steady spot on our favorites list when it debuted last August.

Go any day this summer

for: $4 pints of Abita Purple Haze and O'Fallon Brewery's Wheach, a peach wheat beer.

THE TRUTH ABOUT SUN EXPOSURE Burn notice

MCT

We couldn't do without the sun. It keeps us warm, fuels photosynthesis so we have spinach to eat and helps our bodies make vitamin D. We couldn't see across the street without the sun.

But it also has a dark side. If we fly too close for too long, on a beach, pool or tennis court, its UVB rays penetrate the top layers of our skin, causing sunburn. Its longer UVA rays penetrate the dermis, the next layer down, causing wrinkles, age spots and, too often, skin cancer.

Do we even dare sunbathe these days? We asked the experts.

SUNSCREENS AND SPF

Will sunscreens protect me?

They can help, the FDA says. But take their label claims with a large grain of salt. The FDA has been trying since 1999 to get sunscreen makers to stop using what it calls "unsupported, absolute and/or misleading and confusing terms such as 'sunblock,' 'waterproof'" and others.

What SPF should I use?

You need an SPF (sun protection factor) of at least 15, according to the Skin Cancer Foundation. Dr. Jonette Keri, a dermatologist at the University of Miami Miller School of Medicine, recommends an SPF of at least 30 if you're at the beach, pool or tennis court.

When should I apply sunscreen?

Apply 30 minutes before getting into the sun so your skin can soak up your sunscreen, and reapply every 90 minutes—more often if you go in the water, sweat a lot or towel off.

AT THE BEACH

Is it safe to go to the beach?

"I want my patients to have fun and go to the beach, but they should protect themselves as much as they can," Keri says. Wear sunscreen when you go in the water. When you get out, get under an umbrella.

I can't lie out in the sun with my trashy novel?

"I don't want you to do that," Keri says. "People have in mind that a tan is healthy. It's not. We dermatologists are trying to change the culture—get people NOT to go out and lie in the sun to get a tan. We know a lot more about ultraviolet radiation than we used to."

Can I hit the beach at any time of day?

Seek shade between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m., the Skin Cancer Foundation says.

Is it safe to lie under a beach umbrella?

It helps. But don't forget you still get sunlight reflected off the water, so keep using sunscreen, Keri says.

EVERYDAY NOTIONS

Does it help to toss on a T-shirt when I come out of the water?

Very little, Keri says. A white T-shirt has an SPF of only about 3, she says. But you can buy sun-protective swimwear, coverups, hats, even long-sleeve shirts and pants.

Can dark-skinned people get sunburns?

Dark-skinned people are less susceptible because the melanin that gives their skin its color absorbs UV radiation, Keri says, "but they can still burn."

What about tanning lotions that bronze the skin?

They're OK, Keri says, as long as the active ingredient is dihydroxyacetone (or DHA), which reacts with dead cells on your skin to turn you tan. But the tan you get gives you protection up to only an SPF of 3, so it won't help much against the real sun.

I've heard I should wear sunscreen just walking from my house to my car. Can that be true?

Keri says yes: "I apply it in the morning, at lunch and after work."

HOW TO TREAT A SUNBURN

While the best way to deal with a sunburn is not to get one by wearing sunscreen or protective clothing and limiting midday exposure, here's what to do if you get baked. MCT

» Cool it down.

Soak a cloth with cool water and rest it on burns for about 20 minutes. Then apply a balm, such as aloe vera. You also can use a mild lotion—aim for one without perfume or dye—to help keep skin moisturized.

» Bathe with cool water.

Don't take hot showers or baths and avoid cleaning burned areas with soap, which can be an irritant. Pat your skin dry with a towel instead of rubbing.

» Wear comfortable clothes.

Choose loose-fitting cotton; wool and man-made materials, such as polyester, may chafe against a burn. You also can lie down on a soft cotton blanket on couches, chairs and beds.

» Don't peel your skin.

Picking at a burned spot will irritate it and slow healing.

» Stay out of the sun.

Some people think that if they're already burned, it can't get worse. Not true. Wait until your skin has healed or cover up as much as possible.

» Drink a lot of water.

You can dehydrate more quickly if you are sunburned.

» Take painkillers.

If your burns bother you, get an over-the-counter medicine with acetaminophen or ibuprofen, such as Tylenol, Advil or Motrin.

» Try natural remedies.

Some people have had luck with putting cold, wet teabags on burns or adding a half cup of baking soda or oatmeal to a cool bath.

» See a doctor if needed.

Call if your skin blisters or peels severely. You could be at risk for an infection and may need medication.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY CANCER

June 22-July 22
You're still hot, even if you don't feel like it this week. A moon opposition is making your self-esteem a little droopy. You're worried that you're too fat or too uncool. Soak up some flirty vibes from someone who totally adores you.

Leo

July 23-Aug. 22

Now more than ever, it's important to trust your instincts. Neptune is reminding you that you need to make decisions from the heart, not the mind. Don't second-guess yourself. You know what you really need to do about that relationship you're in.

Virgo

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Saturn is making you pretty obsessed with work, housing and money stuff right now. Try not to get so freaked out that your romance begins to suffer. Ask for some support—either financial or emotional, or both—from that significant other.

Libra

Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You're always good at giving advice, and Jupiter is turning you into a full-time sex therapist this week. You'll tell your friends what they need to do to experience multiple orgasms and encourage everyone to experience more fun in the bedroom.

Scorpio

Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You've been feeling lazy and lonely lately, thanks to grumpy Mars. By the end of the week, you'll shake off these doldrums. It's time to get out your little black book and make some phone calls. Soon you'll be happily hooking up.

Sagittarius

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

It's OK to admit that you don't have it all figured out. You won't look like a loser. Instead, realize that vulnerability can be sexy. As Mars moves opposite your sign, it's important to let your partner know when you really need help with something.

Capricorn

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You could be developing new standards when it comes to choosing a lover, thanks to the moon. Ex-felons aren't doing it for you anymore, and you're looking to date a doctor. Or you've grown tired of strippers with negative IQ's and are finally ready to seek a brainy gal.

Aquarius

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You're pretty inventive in the bedroom, being a creative Air sign. This week, you could impress your partner with your innovative ways. Venus is inspiring you to show off all your best moves—plus come up with some new ones.

Pisces

Feb. 19-March 20

You could be the recipient of multiple invitations. People want to ask you out on dates. Business colleagues are inviting you to network. And parties are happening all over the place. The sun says get out there and try it all.

Aries

March 21-April 19

He loves me, he loves me not. You're not quite sure whether a relationship is headed for the altar or the toilet. Mars is making your love life very schizophrenic. Don't demand answers from the universe since things will be in a state of flux.

Taurus

April 20-May 20

You've discovered that your honey has a secret stiletto fetish, so you'll greet him at the door in 6-inch heels. Or you've found that the way to your girlfriend's heart is through her stomach, so you're preparing to cook her some gourmet meals. Saturn says go for it.

Gemini

May 21-June 21

With Mars joining Venus in your sign, your love life is moving forward. You're throwing off the cobwebs of singlehood and embarking on a lusty adventure with somebody new. Or if you're already with someone, you're discovering fresh ways of turning each other on.

Problems in paradise?

‘Transformers’ sequel is soaring—but it’s not all smooth sailing

“Transformers: Revenge of the Fallen” is on top, people.

The rock-em, sock-em robots flick surpassed the animated feature “Up” on Friday as the highest-grossing film of the year, and an early studio estimate Sunday put its 12-day total earnings at more than $293 million.

Director Michael Bay must be dancing in his boots, right? Well, not everything is going smoothly in summer blockbuster land. Here’s the breakdown of what’s hot and what’s not in the world of “Revenge of the Fallen.”

GETTY IMAGES

THE GOOD

The folks who footed the bill for “Transformers” should totally be in the black right now. According to the L.A. Times, their flick cost almost $200 million to produce, so they’re almost $100 mil over cost. Unless co-stars Shia LaBeouf (above) and Megan Fox start demanding payment in doubloons or something, everyone should be good.

20TH CENTURY FOX

THE BAD

Bay’s blockbuster is facing stiff competition from “Ice Age: Dawn of the Dinosaurs” (above). Early estimates Sunday had the two flicks neck-and-neck for the top spot in weekend earnings. We’ll have to wait for the final numbers to come out Monday, but it’s looking like people are just really digging movies with multiple names this summer.

THE UGLY

The woman responsible for, oh, let’s say, 94 percent of fanboys’ interest in “Revenge of the Fallen”—Megan Fox—is having it out with director Bay in the papers. After she suggested that he relies too heavily on special effects, Bay laid the smack down on Fox (above), saying, “She says some very ridiculous things because she’s 23 years old, and she still has a lot of growing up to do.”

Transformers on holiday

We asked RedEye’s Twitter followers to imagine how the “Transformers” stars spent their holiday. Here’s a few of the responses. When it comes to RedEye and social media, there’s always more than meets the eye. Check us out at twitter.com/redeyechicago and facebook.com/redeyechicago. COMPILED BY SCOTT KLEINBERG.

@MilDollarGeek

Optimus Prime and the Autobots celebrated with fireworks and remembering the other fallen Bots from the tv show.

@tdhurst

i’d imagine they did some karaoke, dancing and drinking.

@Rakitan

whatever Megan Fox did, I’m sure it was in slow-motion.

@MaryPalazzolo

the trans. stars were clearing their camera memories to take pics of the 30th anniversary of Gundams in Tokyo. Life size ...

@danheinz

Megan Fox spent the day thinking of me, then I woke up

Chicago, this is how we do Wit

The new "it" rooftop in town belongs to The Wit Hotel in the Loop.

It has been open for only a few weeks and there already have been several celebrity sightings there. During the recent Just For Laughs comedy festival Vince Vaughn, Ellen DeGeneres, Kanye West, Andy Dick, David Alan Grier and Lisa Lampanelli all were spotted at the luxury boutique hotel.

Hoops star Ben Gordon, former Sox slugger Frank Thomas and the Jersey Boys also have been seen drinking at the new hot spot. And on one recent night, Jon Bon Jovi, Richie Sambora, Jakob Dylan, Sister Hazel, Antoine Walker and Reggie Bush all partied on the roof.

But wait, there's more

Post-4th of July weekend, there are a lot of celebrities headed to Chicago for events all you star stalkers won't want to miss.

» Bethenny Frankel from "Real Housewives of New York" is hosting a cocktail party Friday night at Enclave to promote her Skinny Girl cocktail line.

» Underground is hosting celebrity DJs on Thursdays as part of the Absolut Music Series. This Thursday, Joel Madden of Good Charlotte is scheduled to be spinning at the nightclub; next Thursday, Jermaine Dupri is set to be in the house.

» Finally, on July 25 motocross star Ronnie Renner will attempt to break his "highest air" world record on a ramp set up by Red Bull at Butler Field prior to Venetian Night. Renner set his record last summer with a jump of 59 feet, 2 inches off a quarterpipe in Santa Monica, Calif.

Renner has been training for weeks and recently came to Chicago to scope out ground zero.

The free event is scheduled for 6 p.m. There will be screens set up around the park and also facing the lakefront for spectators on land and water.

SIGHTINGS

» Pete Wentz and Ashlee Simpson-Wentz recently had a romantic dinner at Nightwood before heading to Angels & Kings. » Jon Bon Jovi recently hung out at Rebar in Trump Tower. » Johnny Galecki and the cast of "The Big Bang Theory" partied at Underground.

THE DIGITS Heavyweight showdown

It was a slugfest at the box office over the weekend, with dinosaurs taking on shape-shifting robots. But the winning movie—the biggest moneymaker, that is—will not be known until the dust settles Monday, when official estimates are released.

In the '80s, they ruled the charts. And on Saturday night, Madonna paid tribute to fellow pop icon Michael Jackson in the same London venue where Jackson was scheduled to perform a 50-show run beginning later this month.

Halfway through the Material Girl's set, one of her dancers, wearing MJ's trademark fedora and white glove, mimicked Jackson's signature dance moves to a medley of his hits, vh1.com reported.

Madonna stood in the background, clapping and dancing along. "Let's give it up for one of the greatest artists the world has ever known," she told the audience. "Michael Jackson!"

Stop the presses! Rumer Willis is joining the school paper on "90210," according to "Access Hollywood." The daughter of Demi Moore and Bruce Willis will appear in at least one episode on the CW teen drama this fall as Gia, "a punky cute lesbian who isn't afraid to speak her mind," "Access" reports.

The naming game

Tobey Maguire and wife Jennifer Meyer finally revealed the name of their son, born May 8. Can you guess which soul singer the baby shares a name with? (Answer at the bottom of the page*)

Susan in the studio

Susan Boyle's music career is officially under way, y'all. The "Britain's Got Talent" star reportedly recorded the first track on her planned album in partnership with "American Idol" judge Simon Cowell and his associates. "She sounds fantastic on record," Cowell said, according to people.com. "She's so good, the album is not just going to be show tunes. We're going to take our time with this."

Grint

Boo to the flu

Sounds like "Harry Potter" star Rupert Grint could have used a magic flu remedy. The actor, who plays Harry's sidekick Ron Weasley in the uber-popular movie series, is recovering from a mild case of swine flu, a representative from his management firm told The Associated Press. Grint took a few days away from filming but is now back at work.

* B. The baby is named Otis Tobias Maguire. (His parents, by the way, didn't give their reason for picking the name. We just thought a guessing game would be fun.)
